During this survey, a retrospective review of one resident record revealed that an [REDACTED] medication being administered via an [REDACTED], failed to deliver the full prescribed dosage of medication to the resident. The documentation in the Medication Administration Record was found to be inconsistent and on 4 days of the resident's 25 day stay, [REDACTED] weight was not recorded in the medical record. As soon as the nursing team became aware of a potential issue with the [REDACTED] not delivering the correct dosage of medication, the company supplying the medication and [REDACTED] was notified and a replacement [REDACTED] ordered. The resident's attending physician was notified of the issue and instructed the team to continue monitoring the resident. The resident did have a weight gain and when reviewing records, the nurse manager did notice missing weight documentation. The nursing team notified the physician and follow up orders were obtained and acted on immediately. The nurses who were assigned to care for this resident during the time that the [REDACTED] was not working properly, were counseled and re-educated on the need to check the contents of the [REDACTED] bag in conjunction with the data on the [REDACTED] to ensure that the medication is [REDACTED] properly. The importance of obtaining daily weights and following through as needed was also reviewed with all team members. |                      |   |
